Why you should attend

The Public Garden is concerned with the collaboration of landscape architects and designers with artists on public realm projects. It will explore: the current experience of visual art programmes - installations and events - the effect of art and regeneration in shaping experiences of rural and urban parks - projects for diverse natural and managed green public and private space.

Drawing on experience from a range of professionals in the field and focusing on current developments, the conference will consider: catalysts for change concerned with the identity of site and place - artists involved in the process of engaging a new audience for art and environment through tourism and marketing - the role of local and regional public bodies in the development of public space - emerging attitudes towards ecological and sustainable land use - the legacy left to future generations.
